By: Daily Record Staff | January 24, 2019

The health-care defense firm of Waranch & Brown, LLC marks a milestone this year with its 20th anniversary working with health care providers, state-wide hospital systems and national insurance carriers.

In 1999, co-founders Neal Brown and Larry Waranch decided to devote their careers to helping health care providers, hospital systems and insurance carriers facing medical malpractice and professional administrative defense issues in Maryland. Two decades later, Waranch & Brown has 17 lawyers and paralegals defending health professionals at all levels of the court and administrative systems across the state.

The anniversary follows Brown's induction last year in the American College of Trial Lawyers. He has also been honored by Maryland Super Lawyers Magazine as a medical malpractice defense "Super Lawyer" every year since 2008.

Waranch has also been identified as one of Maryland's Super Lawyers, is an elected member of the American Board of Trial Advocates and has served as national counsel to Podiatry Insurance Company of America.
